NEWS FOR JUNE 2023

Our cover photo

Coronation Afternoon Tea on Church Green. What a fabulous afternoon spent in the sunshine, chatting with friends old and new and drinking a toast to H M King Charles III. The "bring and share" formula never fails and inside The Mews, tables groaned with delicious nibbles, sandwiches, cakes and pastries. The pineapple hedgehogs deserve a special mention.

Focus on Whitegate, Jane Millinchip's photo exhibition and quiz prompted many conversations – and deep thought – as the viewers tried hard to think exactly where in the parish each picture might have been taken. It's true to say that identifying just which field was sometimes tricky and no one got them all right, but it was good fun trying! Jane awarded coronation related prizes to Jo Jordan, the Balls, the Newtons, Alison Gardner & friends and to the overall and deserving winner, Elaine Campbell.

The photos have made such an impact in The Mews that Jane has agreed to let them stay on display for a while, so if you haven't seen them yet, do call in, perhaps to the First Thursday Café on 1st June, where you'll be able to have coffee, cake and company too.

A Bishop in the Benefice

We were very pleased to welcome Bishop Julie from Birkenhead to St Mary's on 30th April for our joint benefice Confirmation Service. Here she is, pictured with the seven candidates – and one small daughter and a bunny.

June thoughts from the Vicar ....

One September morning a few years back a small boy ran the 15 yards or so from the classroom door to the toilets. He had only been in school three weeks and was probably still getting used to school routine and not being at home.

Of course the school had a rule that children shouldn't run in the corridors but one might suspect that matters were of some urgency and school rules were the last thing on the child's mind. His lapse was to have serious consequences, for the dash was observed by an Ofsted Inspector.

In the eventual report the school was deemed to be 'Requires Improvement' due to poor behaviour. The governors challenged the conclusion because in general the behaviour was very good. The outcome was justified by the single observance of a child running in a corridor.

When queried, Ofsted defended the conclusion on the basis that 'a chain is only as strong as its weakest link.' One observation of poor behaviour meant that the whole school was deemed to require improvement. The fact that the child concerned had only been at school for three weeks wasn't taken into account. Nor was the fact that this was the one and only example of poor behaviour observed.

As a sailor I am absolutely sure that there are times when you have to judge a chain by its weakest link. An anchor chain that snaps due to a single weak link is unsafe. But schools aren't chains. They are infinitely more complex. Assessing the education they provide, and their care of children, requires a more nuanced approach.

There has been much written recently calling for an overhaul of the system, or indeed for its abolition. Yet this is in itself also a complex and nuanced matter and simple one-word solutions simply won't do.

Perhaps what is most worrying is that there is nothing that has happened recently, or been said and written, that hasn't already happened before and been said for over a decade.

Our children deserve better. Our teachers deserve better. Those who give of their time and skill as governors and other supporters of schools deserve better. I'm not holding my breath. I have served in school governance for over 30 years and there is little good that has been achieved by imposing top-down initiatives on schools. When governance changed in the 1980's it was labelled as 'Local Management of Schools'. The outcomes have been anything but that.

So in June I find some encouragement in the lives of Samuel and Henrietta Barnett. As a newly married couple in 1872 the Barnetts had the offer of a nice parish near Oxford. Instead Samuel accepted the invitation to become Vicar of St Jude's in Whitechapel, a parish which had earned the reputation of being the worst parish in London. In those days that was saying something!

One cold wet January day, just prior to their wedding, the young couple stood before the church in the midst of gloomy squalor and decided that was where God was calling them to be.

Their work together, for it was a genuine partnership, was transformational. Their methods were unorthodox but effective. People recognised their generosity and commitment. They laboured under continual criticism from above and those who knew better. But they prevailed and lives were made better. Samuel died on 17th June 1913, Henrietta On 10th June 1936. The Church of England remembers their lives this month with thanksgiving.

God loves a cheerful rebel.

A verse for June

Many people don't see the value in getting enough rest. But God knows that without proper rest you'll struggle. God even put it in the Ten Commandments:

"Remember to observe the Sabbath day by keeping it holy. You have six days each week for your ordinary work, but the seventh day is a Sabbath day of rest dedicated to the LORD your God" (Exodus Ch 20 v8)

The prophet Elijah needed rest after a confrontation with the prophets of Baal. Elijah asked God to send down fire to consume a sacrifice and prove he was the one true God.

God sent the fire but the experience left Elijah emotionally and physically drained, so he ran away and hid in a cave. Elijah became so discouraged that he asked God to kill him.

What was God's solution to Elijah's depression? God gave him food and let him go to sleep. Then God woke him up, fed him some more, and sent him back to sleep.

Do you need some rest today?
